

This proposal would allow for major media corporations to control an even larger part of media content than they already do. Furthermore, it would choke the ability of independent media operators to find outlets and distribution for their products, and silence individual voices.